TAKING RED LIGHT LANDS

TRUCK DRIVER BEHIND GREEN

Frank Thorburn of East Providence, an auto truck driver, lost one red light here Thursday night, found another to replace it and eventually landed behind the green lights at police headquarters.

Thorburn's trouble began when the red globe on the tail light of his truck was smashed. They seemed to be solved, as far as he could see, when he came across a barrier with two red lanterns on it at the corner of the street where he was driving. He was in progress. He appropriated one of the red lanterns, attached it to the rear of his machine and sped on his way to the Jewett City road towards Providence.

But the tannery watchman had seen the truck driver taking the red lantern and promptly telephoned to the police headquarters, from which Capt. D. J. Tromey dispatched Officers P. Murphy and Myron Morgan in the auto police patrol with orders to catch the truck.

There has been much trouble over broken lanterns and lanterns disappearing from the North Main street road work so that a trouble like a good chance to catch a snoop like this.

The truck had a start of about 15 minutes on the police patrol, but Officer Murphy fairly burned up the road in the pursuit, overtaking and hauling across the road ahead of the truck about a mile from Jewett City, and ordering Thorburn to drive back to police headquarters.

Here he was ordered to appear in the city court this (Friday) morning. He left the truck as a bond for his appearance. Thorburn explained that he had no intention of stealing the red lantern, but thought he was protecting the public better by having a red light on the rear of his own machine rather than if he drove on without one.

He testified that Mrs. Higgins told him that she loved Harris, for whom she had been married for twenty years, and that when she knew he was to be hanged and his son's wife there, displacing her, she could not bear to see anyone else living in the house and accordingly set it on fire Wednesday afternoon.

Probable cause was found and Mrs. Higgins was bound over to the September term of the criminal superior court.

Bonds were placed at $1,000 in default of which she was delivered to Jailer Oscar H. Main at the Norwich jail.

Her savings bank account of $282 has been attached. She denies that she took Harris' money, saying that it was put away in a place where she could not get at it.

It has been estimated that it would cost about $2,000 to rebuild the Harris buildings. He had only about $500 in substance on the buildings and none on his furniture which was valued at about $200.

Washington, July 7.—Federal reserve bank operations during the past year have resulted in an increase of its gold holdings by four hundred and eighty-three million, six hundred and seven thousand dollars, a decrease in its notes in circulation of four hundred and eighty million dollars, and an increase in its total reserves of five hundred and nineteen million dollars, according to a statistical summary issued by the board of governors today.

The contraction of the currency indicated, the board said, the degree to which the country had entered a period of deflation.

"Characteristic of this period on the banking side have been reduction of loans and bills held, retirement of note circulation, gain in gold and liquidation of investments," the statement said, "while on the business side they have been lowering of production, growth of unemployment, falling off of foreign trade and reaction of prices."

"The spring months of 1921 would seem the light of information now available, to be a period of approach to equilibrium in certain lines of business, and of preparation for recovery from depressed conditions that had developed."

Governments obligations continue to work out of the banking system of the country, and into hands of private or corporate investors. It was said, because reserve loans on treasury bonds and certificates of indebtedness dropped from one billion, three hundred million dollars in June, 1920, to six hundred forty-eight million dollars in June of this year.

ON TRIAL FOR MURDER OF FIANCEE

Corvallis, Mich., July 7.—Efforts by the prosecution to establish discrepancies in statements credited to Forrest Higgins, and a clash between opposing attorneys over charges the prosecution was attempting to impeach the testimony of the state's witness, consumed most of today's session of Higgins' trial on a charge of having murdered his fiancée, Lucy Wittum.

After Louis N. Fardeau, an under-sheriff, had testified that he saw Higgins, the poisoning of the girl on March 20, last, the state recalled J. H. Barton, a locomotive engineer and member of a crew that discovered the girl's body.

FLYING FISH

Catalina Island, 25 miles out in the Pacific Ocean off the coast of Los Angeles, is a rendezvous for flying fish. Millions of the winged creatures make their home in Avalon Bay. The Catalina Excursion Company equipped one of its boats with a giant searchlight, and every night it scouts about Avalon Bay searching thousands of flying fish out of their haunts, much to the edification of the passengers. The flying fish have grown to such proportions that instead of one light the boats now have six powerful flood lights, enabling them to arouse school after school of the peculiar creatures. Where the voyagers formerly were content to recount in thousands the number of flying fish they had seen, it is no common thing now for them to tell of the millions of winged bodied creatures that have been seen. The clear evening, in true fisherman style they have their proof ready, the pre-dried remains of unfortunate members of the flying fish families, which they have hurled themselves at the boat's light only to fall helpless on its deck.
